Children's Art Contest Deadline Extended

Friday, Feb 21, 6:52 PM

We are happy to announce that the deadline for the Children’s Art Poster contest submissions has been extended to May 1, 2020. For more information and submission forms click here. Please note than everyone can enter this contest and does not need to be from a member society of the World Hypertension League, therefore please disseminate to anyone you think would be interested.

The submission process is simple, just fill out the submission forms and send by return email with digital copies of the children’s artwork. The theme of the artwork can be any aspect of hypertension: prevention, healthy lifestyle, measurement, high blood pressure risks. Each art piece should be titled “World Hypertension Day 2020” written in the language of the country of submission, with the name of the artist(s) and a description of the content. Winners will be announced on May 17th, World Hypertension Day 2020.

We look forward to children using their artistic skills to show their friends and families their ideas about hypertension. Thank you for your consideration and help in this exciting endeavor. Please let us know any questions you may have.

Sincerely,

Daniel T. Lackland, DrPH, Professor of Epidemiology, Medical University of South Carolina; WHL Immediate Past President

Edward J. Roccella, PhD, MPH, Coordinator, United States National High Blood Pressure Education Program (NHBPEP) National Institutes of Health (ret); Chair, Strategic Action Committee Inter American Society for Hypertension, Envoy for Global Hypertension Education, World Hypertension League

Bonita Falkner, MD, Professor Emeritus, Thomas Jefferson University; Chair, Executive Committee, The International Pediatric Hypertension Association (IPHA), Pediatric Envoy, World Hypertension League